Top Vote - Getter Hoyer, Democrats And Gun Law Win in Greenbelt

by Mary Lou Williamson

U.S. Congressman Steny H. Hoyer once again received the largest number of Greenbelt votes, 4996, in Tuesday's 1988 General Election. Almost 80 percent of Greenbelt's registered voters trekked to the 4 precincts here. Greenbelters gave their support, as expected, to the Democratic candidates and to the gun law.

On the State's hottest issue — question 3, a referendum on the state legislature's law to ban certain kinds of handguns, there was no contest here as 4461 Greenbelters voted "For" to 2133 "Against." The 67.7 percent approval showed the community hasn't changed its mind since a 1969 city referendum in which voters supported gun control by two-to-one. (See box, page 2.)

Governor Michael Dukakis in his bid for the presidency garnered 58.1 percent to Vice President George Bush's 40.9 percent — a victory in Greenbelt, but clearly not by a large enough margin to assure victory at the state level where the candidates remain even. A count of the state's 85,000 absentee ballots may be required to settle who won. In the rest of the nation, President-elect Bush swept 30 states to Dukakis's seven with 13, including Maryland, too close to call late Tuesday night. The Dukakis-Bentsen team out-performed both Mondale-Ferarro in 1984, 55.1 percent, and Carter-Mondale in 1980, 48.3 percent.

Paul S. Sarbanes won handily over Alan L. Keyes, by 69 to 31 percent in Greenbelt, 70 percent in Prince Georges County, and 63 percent statewide.

Hoyer trounced his opponent John Eugene Sellner by 77.3 to 22.7 percent here, and 79 percent across the 5th District.

Judges

The five judges on the ballot all received favorable votes both in Greenbelt as well as the county and state.

Questions

Of the three state and seven county questions, all but Question 1 easily won the needed votes. Turned down by the voters was the right of the Anne Arundel County government to take land for certain public uses in a condemnation proceeding prior to a jury's determination of compensation. This issue apparently struck home for Greenbelt residents distressed by the State Highway Administration's ability to take a portion of Greenbelt land for the new Bailimore-Washington Parkway ramps without waiting either for negotiations with the owners or a jury trial to set the price for the land.

Turnout

The turnout of 79.8 percent easily bested both the 1984 election turnout of 76.4 percent and that of 1980, 76.1 percent. The county turnout was 77 percent, while across the nation only 66 percent of the voters went to the polls on Nov. 8.

Task Force Proposed for City Arts Policy Receives Positive Response

by Diane Oberg

Approximately 35 people attended the October 17 public hearing on the proposed city arts policy, with five speaking in favor of prompt adoption and implementation of the policy and no one speaking against the proposal.

The proposed arts policy was developed by a task force established by the Parks and Recreation Advisory Board (PRAB). Task force chairman Tom Renahan summarized the policy, focusing attention on the statement of purpose that begins the report. This statement calls for the integration of the performing, visual and literary arts into "the lives of the individuals and the community as a whole." The policy consists of a series of goals and strategies to achieve this result.

Under the proposed policy the city would: establish a variety of high-quality arts opportunities and encourage citizen participation in the arts, provide high quality facilities for the performing and visual arts, establish Greenbelt as a "cultural center," ensure adequate and increasing funding for arts organizations and programs, and advance policy goals through effective planning and cost-effective use of resources.

To oversee the implementation of this policy, the proposal calls for assignment of all city-run arts programs to one Recreation Department staff member. In addition, council would establish an Arts Committee to develop a detailed arts policy and to guide the city in its implementations. The committee would consist of a PRAB member, at least one person from each of the visual, performing and literary arts, an arts educator and two or more business representatives, for a total of nine to 11 people.

Cost Estimates

The city staff, which has reviewed the proposal, is generally supportive. However, City Manager James K. Giese pointed out that provision of performing and visual arts centers would be expensive. The staff estimates that renovation of 10,000 square feet of the North End school building for a visual arts center would cost $500,000 to $750,000. The cost of providing a performing arts facility depends upon the nature of the facility and until that is decided, cannot be estimated. Given current shortfalls in the city's capital improvements budget, Giese said that to accept the establishment of these arts facilities without funding to accomplish them would be "meaningless."

The proposed city capital improvements budget, not yet adopted by council, allocated $552,300 for renovations to the North End Center. However, $396,400 is already committed as matching funds for state grants for a senior day care center and a senior activities center. This leaves approximately $156,000. In addition, the city has recently received a county grant of $190,000 for North End renovations.

However, Mayor Gil Weidenfeld

Council Tries to Stop Land Taking for Parkway Ramps

by Heather Elizabeth Peterson

Greenbelt's city council has sent a letter to the county's Department of Public Works to try to stop the condemnation of land at the edge of Greenbelt. The land is targeted for use in relocating the northbound ramps between the Baltimore-Washington Parkway and Greenbelt Road.

At a special city council meeting on October 25, there was a brief discussion concerning the proposed ramps and the condemnation proceedings. These ramps are designed to go through the southwest edge of Greenbelt, next to Greenbelt Condominiums' recreation area — tennis courts, swimming pool and community building.

Council met with the county's Department of Public Works and Transportation early in October to discuss Greenbelt's concerns about noise and safety barriers between the ramps and the community. Greenbelt representatives were particularly concerned about the ramps' proximity to the Greenbelt tennis courts and to its child day-care center.

Weidenfeld reported that he was told at the time by Public Works that the city had three weeks to accept the offer of $55,000 for the land, or condemnation proceedings would begin on October 31. Weidenfeld tried to extend the deadline, with no success.

Greenbelt residents reported to council that they have since been told that condemnation proceedings had already started before they met with Public Works.

Council sent a letter to James R. Novack, Director of Public Works, urging him to halt condemnation actions until further negotiations take place between Public Works and Greenbelt.

Michael Vaccaro, President of the Greenbelt Community Association, brought to the meeting a blueprint of the proposed design and an aerial view of the area. "The problem is that they (Public Works) see this"—he pointed to the map showing precisely drawn blue lines—"and we see this"—and he pointed to the picture of the recreation facilities, nestled among dark green trees.

County Call-A-Bus Reaches Greenbelt

Prince Georges County's Call-A-Bus Program has extended its service into the northwest quadrant of the county, including Greenbelt.

The purchase of four new vans through the Statewide Special Transportation Assistance Program made the service expansion possible. The Call-A-Bus fleet now contains 11 vans, 6 lift-equipped.

The program operates Monday-Friday, from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Call-A-Bus provides door-to-door service; trips are reserved 24 hours in advance by calling 372-1255. Fares are $1 per one-way trip, half-price for senior citizens and the disabled.

For further information on the Call-A-Bus Program, call the Office of Transportation at 952-3636.

Greenbelt also has its own call-a-ride service which may be reached by calling 474-4100.

Rosebud Ragtime Ensemble At Youth Center Sunday

Wait And See

The question of what to do with the North End School building has been complicated by the county Board of Education's debate over the future of Center School. Citizen activists have long urged the rehabilitation of all or part of the city-owned North End facility for use as an arts center as well as for child day-care and senior citizen programs. Now the county school system is also eyeing this site as the possible location for a new elementary school building to serve Greenbelt.

There are still many unknowns. Before any city decision on use of the North End School is made, a number of issues must be resolved, including the terms under which the school system would seek to reacquire the North End facility, what other sites the school board may have under consideration, and the future of Center School if it is not renovated. Most importantly from the city's standpoint, how will the city, its citizens, its students, its structures and its green spaces have fared when all the decisions have been made?

With so many variables now in the mix, we think the city council would be wise to hold off a decision on what to do about rehabilitating North End School. Sometimes the most significant act is to wait and see.

Task Force Proposed for Arts

feld pointed out that the backers of an arts center at the North End will have competition for those funds from other interest groups, such as those suggesting child day care or a nursery school at the site.

Renahan said that PRAB did not ask the task force to consider cost in developing a policy, but he did question the staff's estimate that an additional full-time recreation staffer would be required. Given that the Recreation Department is already providing arts programs, the committee did not feel that an additional full-time staffer would be required. Giese said that the Recreation Department estimated that at least one additional full time staffer would be required to perform all the duties proposed in the draft policy.

North End Availability

Uncertainty over the future of Center School may affect the implementation of the arts policy. The Board of Education has listed the North End School site as a possible location of a new elementary school if they decide not to renovate Center School.

While the policy assumes that the visual arts center would be housed in the North End School, Renahan said that the policy is not dependent upon any particular location.

Renahan urged council to act quickly to adopt the policy and establish the Arts Committee. This request was supported by Eileen Peterson, John Ward, Beatrix Whitehall, Kevin Kneisley and Keith Chernicoff.

Ward said that the provision of an arts facility is too large a task for the individual arts groups to do privately. However, he said that once council made a commitment to provide such a facility, these groups could seek private benefactors. Ward said that private donors will not contribute to groups who can offer only their dream of an arts facility, with no promise of city support.

The proposal calls for the Arts Committee to establish fundraising criteria for private groups seeking financial help from the city. Kneisley objected to having a city advisory body submit fundraising plans for private arts groups. He said the committee's function should be to distribute any grants received by the city. Despite this objection, Kneisley said that it is important for the city to adopt an arts policy.

Councilmembers Antoinette M. Bram, Joseph Isaacs and Edward Putens and Mayor Weidenfeld all supported the proposal. Councilmember Thomas X. White was not present.

Bram suggested that the proposed Greenbelt Foundation, a city sponsored endowment fund, could be used to raise funds for the arts. Weidenfeld agreed, saying that Bram's idea could not only benefit the arts but also provide a focus for the foundation.

The proposed Arts Policy will appear on the next council agenda for formal action.

When Is the Meeting?

When is the meeting? You know, the one we've been told since — was it last May? — would be scheduled soon. The one about Center School. When is it?

It's been held? The school board representatives and city council held it? They talked about trading North End for Center? They said the school board property off Hamilton Place disguised itself as city property sometime before Halloween?

Did someone forget to tell us about this meeting? Oh. The meeting was not open to the public so it wasn't publicized. What? In Greenbelt? A closed meeting? Nah — couldn't be — you're kidding.

Oh, it was an information-gathering meeting to discuss options.

Since when do the school board and city council have the corner on options? I've been waiting to have my say and to hear yours, before the survey comes out. I want to hear it all — not just what some elected figures deem politically advantageous.

I haven't made up my mind yet what I think should be done about Center School, but I've thought up lots of pros and cons for several options I've identified. I'm sure you can think up lots more.

Anyway, why is city council talking to the school board? We haven't had a meeting with city council about this issue. Who are they speaking for? Why can't they speak in front of us all?

So, when is the meeting? You know, the meeting about Center School. The one we were told — was it last May? — would be soon?

Open Letter

To the Editor:

It's Election Night. I don't know about you, but I'm not satisfied with this year's campaign, and I want to do something to prevent a repetition in 1992, regardless of who wins 1988's shabby debate.

Accordingly, I am inviting people of all political persuasions to join in creating a new, non-partisan, cross-cultural, grass-roots, unofficial national, presidential convention for 1992-starting now!

We really can do it cheaply, using home computers with a volunteer telecommunications network.

If you are intrigued by this possibility and want to support this nonprofit, non-partisan, patriotic enterprise, please leave me a recorded message at 961-8793.

I want to be clear and frank with the Greenbelt public, and to acknowledge that, as a completely separate activity, I am partial to certain potential candidates for 1992. I hope that supporters of all the candidates-to-be can join together, united in a commitment to purify and reinvigorate the quality of American politics.

Make First Time the Last

We were at the Lake Park on Sunday morning, November 6, enjoying the peace, tranquility and wildlife of Greenbelt's most beautiful park, when the scene was destroyed by huge military helicopters flying low over the lake landing on its shore.

Granted, the National Guard is a worthwhile organization when usefully employed, as in recent emergencies such as the firefighting in drought-stricken areas; and the public should have 'awareness' of such constructive activities.

But the roar and fumes of helicopters and trucks do not belong in a quiet city park, one of our few remaining natural havens. One cannot have it both ways. Either we will have a physical and mental oasis which will attract and keep marvelous creatures such as kingfishers and blue herons, and give us time to think, or we will have a landing pad for helicopters.

This event was referred to in the News Review as the first annual National Guard Awareness Day; it should be the last held in the Lake Park. A more suitable location can certainly be found, one which would minimize disturbances to the remaining natural areas.

THANKS

Greenbelt Soccer Association would like to thank all the ice cream lovers in Greenbelt who (patronized) our stand. Special thanks go to the young GSA players as well as their parents, who donated their time to help make this first official fundraiser a success.

GSA would also like to thank the Public Works Department who helped out by setting up the field goals and lining the fields in preparation for the Baltimore Blast Clinic planned for Braden Field. Unfortunately the weather did not cooperate so the clinic was at the Youth Center. But they helped out by doing this work ahead of their planned time. Thanks!

When Pfc. Thomas Keifine stopped a car on Oct. 28 for a traffic violation on Greenbelt Rd. near Walker Dr., he noticed the handle of a handgun sticking out from under the passenger seat. A search of the vehicle revealed 201 grams of "crack" cocaine. The small caliber handgun had had the serial number filed off to avoid identification. Two men, residents of Greenbelt, were arrested and charged with possession of "crack" with intent to distribute, possession of a handgun, and removing the serial number from the gun. In addition, the driver was charged with speeding and driving with a suspended license and is being held without bond pending trial. The second man is being held on $500 bond pending trial.

Stolen Vehicles

Two nonresidents were arrested on Nov. 2 and charged with auto theft when Officer Thomas Moreland, while on patrol, saw their car fail to stop for a red light on Greenbelt Rd. at Hanover Pkwy. A registration check revealed the car had been stolen in Virginia on Oct. 31.

Two other nonresidents were arrested following a stop for a safety violation. The men attempted to flee and were caught. The car had been stolen in Virginia and the license plates had been stolen in Prince Georges County.

On Oct. 30 a 1981 Harley Low Rider motorcycle was taken from the 9100 block of Edmonston Rd. The bike was black with gold trim and had MD license plates 74082D.

On Nov. 1, a burgundy 1988 Jeep Cherokee Chief was reported stolen from the 6100 block of Breezewood Ct. It was recovered an hour later after having been in an accident.

Also on Nov. 1, a silver 1987 Toyota 4-Runner (VA lic. plate MLJ-584) was stolen from the 7800 block of Mandan Rd.

Thefts

Two thefts resulted in arrests this week. Pfc. Matthew Carr arrested a 20-year-old male resident for leaving the Co-op Food Store with two 12-packs of beer without paying for them. He was released pending trial. A 27-year-old nonresident man was arrested for stealing a woman's purse from the open trunk of her car while she was loading groceries. The suspect was released pending trial.

About $350 in cash was taken from a coffee-shop on Nov. 2 in the 6300 block of Ivy Ln. Entry was gained by breaking out the door lock. Two vending machines were broken into at the Co-op gas station on Oct. 28. An undetermined amount of coins was taken. An apartment in the 6000 block of Springhill Dr. was broken into during the afternoon of Oct. 31. Entry was gained by breaking a sliding glass door and removing the charlie bar.

"You'd better not go to work tomorrow," said Uncle Cheviot. "You seem to be coming down with a cold."

"It's no big deal," I assured him, "I feel fine and I promise not to breathe on anybody."

"Ah, but you might breathe on your computer, and that could be dangerous," Uncle replied.

"So what if I do?" I asked. "You're probably infectious, and you know how easily computers catch viruses," he said.

I laughed. "No. no. Computers don't catch human viruses. Not to worry."

"You mean they catch viruses from animals? Like Fido's kennel cough or Kitty's ear infection? Could they get carried away by hair balls?"

"You're the one that's getting carried away. Computer viruses are not like that," I answered.

"Well, I'm worried," Uncle insisted. "Supposing those little buggers get into the IRS files, and I receive a tax bill for a million dollars. What if they get into the Medicare records and I come down with a rare disease. Somebody told me..."

"Are you going to believe everything you hear?" I asked. "Supposing somebody told you two whales were frozen in Greenbelt Lake. Would you believe that?"

"Really?" His eyes were big with surprise. "Frozen in November? I had no idea it's been that cold. And whales, you say, I wonder that I didn't see them when I was feeding the goldfish. What kind of bread crumbs do you suppose they would like?"

I sighed in frustration. "Real big ones," I moaned.

"White or whole wheat?" he asked.

I shook my head in despair. "Uncle," I screamed, "Can't you see that I'm just pulling your leg?"

A smile spread over his face. "Oh, of course, I understand. You're not really going to work tomorrow. You'll stay home on account of your cold."

"Right," I said surrendering. "If I feel better I'll buy ten loaves of bread and feed the whales in Greenbelt Lake. If you're sure they won't catch my computer's virus."

CITY NOTES

The department of public works had a busy week. The general crew installed safety railings in the garage, cleaned storm drains, and worked on snow equipment. The crew also picked up leaves around town.

The park crew cleared brush around the new police facility, planted bulbs in Greenbelt East, sodded along various strips of roadway, and installed playground equipment. The crew also removed trees from the lake that beavers had felled. Two beavers were trapped and placed on a farm that wanted them.

Requests for Special Trash pickup are increasing. However, both Special Trash and the leaf recycling program are on schedule.

The Greenbelt Connection has received many requests and is expected to remain in demand with the onset of cold weather and the holidays.

Panel Debates Approach To Curbing Drug Abuse

by Robert Williams

A nine-member advisory panel met before about 50 Greenbelt citizens on October 11, advocating a coordinated, three-pronged approach of prevention, enforcement, and treatment programs to curb drug and alcohol abuse.

Prince Georges County Assistant District Attorney and chairperson Valerie Siegel of Greenbelt's Crime Prevention Committee led the discussion among invited drug/alcohol counselors, program directors, family therapists, and law enforcement officials. The meeting, which was held at the Municipal Building, was sponsored by the Greenbelt City Council and the Crime Prevention Committee.

"What works is coordination and cooperation," said Ruth Phillips from the Governor's Office of Justice Assistance. All agencies must work together if the state and its communities want to make an impact on the demand for illegal drugs, she said. "Singly, they sabotage each other."

It takes many different types of programs to dry up the demand side of the drug problem, said Siegel. There are many different causes of addiction, just as there are many different kinds of cancer and cancer treatments. "We must treat the people that are using (drugs) and help the people who are not to make the choice not to use (drugs)," she said.

Ray Lorion, Director of the Clinical Psychology Program at the University of Maryland and substance abuse researcher, said a war on drugs calls for a "Joint Chiefs of Staff," consisting of trained parent and teacher groups equipped with adequate funding and information.

Their job would be to design and implement programs specific to the needs of this community, said Lorion. He also recommended the hiring of a program coordinator to oversee and advise on community efforts.

Family counselor and consultant to the Greenbelt CARES Youth Services Bureau, Dr. David Pelligrini said recreation programs such as Greenbelt's are non-conducive to drug and alcohol abuse behaviors. The community can support recovering addicts by providing these activities to supplement treatment and prevention programs, he said.

Community after-care and relapse prevention programs are vital for long-term recovery, said John Boren, because once a person is addicted, "it's a lifetime proposition." Boren is group therapist and head of the Clinical and Behavioral Pharmacology Program at the National Institute on Drug Abuse.

Churches and civic organizations can support relapse prevention programs, Boren said, by donating space for groups such as Alcoholics Anonymous or Narcotics Anonymous to hold their meetings.

Parents can be supportive of their children by giving clear messages about drugs and alcohol, said Lorion. Children need strong family values stated openly by their parents, he said, to help their children resist the many conflicting messages by the media and their peers.

Stephen Miller, Assistant Director of the Offenders Utilizing Treatment Inc. (O.U.T.), stressed that everyone in the community must participate in whatever they are best suited to do. "It is better to build children than repair men and women," said Miller.

THE COUNTER OFFER

QUESTION: I received a written offer to purchase my property. What happens to the original offer if I make a counter offer?

ANSWER: A counter offer is a combination of a rejection of the initial offer and a new offer by the seller. When the seller demands a higher price, more down payment, or different terms, the buyer's original offer is automatically cancelled. In effect, this may burn bridges behind you. If the buyer refuses your counter offer, there is no way you can force him to make good on the original offer because it will have been wiped out with the rejection and counter offer. This is a tricky area of negotiation that calls for expert advice.

Council and CRAB Discuss Idea of Greenbelt Foundation

by Karen Myers

At a worksession on October 5, the City Council and representatives from the Community Relations Advisory Board (CRAB) discussed the possibility of forming a Greenbelt Foundation which would create funds to be used for unique and worthwhile community purposes.

Discussion of such a foundation has been going on for over a year. Councilmember Antoinette Bram first suggested that there should be some sort of established mechanism whereby citizens could leave contributions, either in property or funds, to the city. Council then referred the idea to CRAB, asking them to look into the foundation's feasibility. CRAB has been meeting with community residents and organizations, and has submitted recommendations to the Council.

Among their recommendations, CRAB has suggested that a committee be formed to set up a framework for the foundation and determine its goals, the foremost goal being to fund worthwhile city projects. Mayor Gil Weidenfeld said the city staff will draw up a resolution and begin to search for committee members, especially from among those who have had previous fundraising experience.

Mayor Pro Tem Joseph Isaacs expressed concern that such a foundation may cut into the fundraising efforts of other existing city organizations. He suggested that the foundation should have specific causes and projects in mind before approaching possible donors. Having only vague goals, he added would make it more difficult to raise funds, especially considering the competition of other groups.

City manager James K. Giese noted that much of the success of such a foundation would depend on a hardworking, experienced individual to take hold of the foundation's goals and move on them. He added that the foundation would not like to run on a volunteer basis, but would require some sort of revenue for a paid staff.

Council discussed CRAB's recommendation that seed money be made available by the city to fund the initial organizational and advertising costs.

Upon a resolution drawn up by the city, an effort to find committee members will begin. One suggestion made at the worksession was that the committee's Board of Directors be made up of the foundation's donors.

Citing the growth of business in Greenbelt over the past several years, Mayor Weidenfeld noted a great potential for raising money by tapping the tremendous new resources in the area. The Council resolved that in the formation of a Greenbelt Foundation, the emphasis will continually be on community projects.

Green Belt Tours

Members of the Committee to Save the Green Belt will conduct guided tours of the green belt each Saturday. On Nov. 12 at 11 a.m. the tour will start at the end of Northway. Call Paul at 474-4653 or Rodney at 345-5427 for information.

Gypsy Moths Discussed

Next spring as the leaves on the trees begin to unfold, tiny gypsy moth caterpillars will start emerging from egg masses laid late this summer. In some parts of the county it is likely that defoliation of entire trees will occur if nothing is done to aid trees in their battle for survival.

A number of organizations and concerned citizens throughout the county have combined efforts and coordinated a public meeting regarding the Gypsy Moth. A panel of experts will make presentations on November 17 to inform and educate residents to the possible devastating effects the caterpillars can and may have on trees. The panel will include: Bob Tichenor, Director of the State Gypsy Moth Program; Dr. Michael Raupp of the Department of Entomology at the University of Maryland Extension Service; Dr. Richard Ridgeway, Research Leader for the Insect Chemical Ecology Laboratory of the USDA Agricultural Research Service; Dr. Kevin Thorpe, staff entomologist for the National Coalition Against the Misuse of Pesticides; and Tim Zastrow of Tree Masters Pest Management Systems. The panel will be moderated by Margaret Mallino, Mayor of University Park.

All county residents are urged to attend this public meeting on gypsy moths on Thursday, November 17 at 7:30 p.m. at the Bond Mill Elementary School auditorium. To get to the school take I-95 North to MD 198 West, turn right on Bond Mill Road, turn left on Sherwood Avenue. The school is located at 16001 Sherwood Avenue.

Springhill Lake provides workshops every other Wednesday, usually at no cost. Events at Springhill Lake are announced in the Greenbelt News Review, and on Springhill Lake's Cable Television Channel 10.

Council Discusses North End

by Marcie Birk

At the September 26 City Council meeting, Betty Timer, member of the Citizens of North End and the Senior Citizen Task Force, urged Council to begin renovations on the North End Center with the $190,000 provided for that purpose by Prince Georges County.

Timer said that rather than waiting for the state grants the city has applied for to be approved, work on the building should begin as soon as possible. In reference to the old North End school, Timer said, "It's not any better, it's just getting worse."

Council's reaction to Timer's request was that construction should not begin until it is clear what monies are available for this project. Councilmember Antoinette Bram said, "We can't plan if we don't have the money and we shouldn't make promises we can't keep."

Mayor Gil Weidenfeld said the senior center is high on his priority list. He said he would ask staff to explore options for how to proceed if the city gets maximum funding for the project, and also how to proceed if the city gets no money for the project.

Timer's comments come on the heels of the state's rejection of Greenbelt's grant proposal for a senior citizen activity center.

Currently, the city has $391,400 set aside for the North End Center project to use as matching funds for state grants. The adult day care center grant from the state provides $144,000.

Following the state's denial of the senior citizen activity center grant, staff met with state representatives. The meeting's purpose was to give the State Office on Aging a better idea of what the city is planning for the senior center.

The state agreed to reconsider the $247,000 grant proposal and to respond sometime in October.

Karen Haseley, Greenbelt's therapeutic recreation supervisor and member of the Senior Citizen Task Force, was present at the meeting with state representatives.

In a recent interview, she said the proposal did not meet certain state requirements. To begin with, the state requires the center to serve 2000 seniors. Haseley said this requirement could be met if the center were open to non-Greenbelt residents. The state also wanted to know the specific programming plan of the center.

Haseley said the one requirement the city was having the most trouble filling was for an on-site food program for the center. She said the county currently provides funding for a senior nutrition program at Green Ridge House and has denied the city's funding request for another program.

The city is exploring various options to meet this state requirement, Haseley said, but moving the food program from Green Ridge House was not considered an option.

Regarding the likelihood of the state accepting the clarified grant proposal, Haseley said, "We'll just have to wait and see." If the state does not accept the proposal, Haseley said the city would then decide whether to re-submit a proposal next year.

Haseley noted the city is moving ahead with plans for an adult day care program and is currently looking for a provider. She said the adult day care is a form of respite care for those seniors unable to live independently during the day. The program would

City Seeking Citizen

Suggestions on Budget

The City of Greenbelt is assembling data in preparation of the city budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1989.

To make the budget an effective instrument of planning and fiscal responsibility, citizen involvement is an essential element of the budget process. The city is therefore seeking citizen suggestions in this phase of the budget-making process.

Written suggestions should be submitted no later than November 30 to C. R. Prybyl, Director of Administrative Services, whose office is located in the Municipal Building.

"To Your Smile"

Ray Vidal, D.D.S.

What are plaque-dissolving agents?

Plaque is a sticky, almost invisible film that constantly forms on the teeth. Most dental problems occur as a result of the failure to thoroughly remove plaque daily through the use of dental floss and proper brushing.

Research has been underway for many years to discover a means of dissolving the plaque that is left behind even after a thorough daily cleaning. Mouthwashes seem to be the most promising plaque-dissolving agents. Although not completely understood at this time, the effectiveness of any mouthwash is apparently linked to its ability to destroy the bacteria found in plaque.

A recent study released by a major brand of mouthwash claims 50% reduction in plaque formation in carefully monitored test subjects. Past studies using several different brands have resulted in varying degrees of success. What is common to all research is the fact that mouthwash is to be considered an additional, rather than a substitute means of plaque control. Also, it must be remembered that further research is necessary to verify and repeat the findings before this can be considered an acceptable form of dental disease prevention.
